

VERFIRM AWARDED TOP 100 HONOR

District Administration—the most-read magazine of America’s school district leaders—includes the K12 Apps Library Reservation System in its Top 100 Products of 2010.

Philadelphia, PA — Readers of District Administration are the top public school administrators in the country, and they know from experience what works and what does not work within their districts. As part of its annual award program, District Administration asked its readers to nominate the hardware, software, books and materials, Web sites, or facilities products that have made a positive difference in their districts in 2010.

Verfirm’s Library Reservation System is a web application for managing room reservations in school libraries. The application was designed to replace inefficient methods used for room scheduling, making it easier for teachers and administrative staff to schedule time in the library. Librarians can now manage the entire room reservation process online and generate statistics instantly for use in annual reports and other media. The system saves countless hours of time for both teachers and library staff and is very affordable.

The 2010 winners were selected from hundreds of nominations received over the last six months. “These product recommendations included extensive descriptions from school administrators of how these products are used in their districts, making it very challenging to choose the top 100 products. We hope these products, and their accompanying testimonials, will act as a valuable resource for our readers,” says District Administration’s editor in chief, Judy Faust Hartnett.

District Administration is a monthly publication covering all of the important topics faced in today’s K12 school systems. With a circulation of more than 73,000, District Administration reaches top decision-makers in virtually every school district across the country. Subscribers are district-level leaders in K12 education, including superintendents, assistant superintendents, curriculum directors, business officers, IT directors and federal funds administrators.

Verfirm Education and Business offers bold, unique technological solutions for organizations large and small. Our flagship product for schools, the K12 Apps Library Reservation System, was developed with the assistance of school librarians. The Library Reservation System replaces outdated methods of reserving rooms such as scheduling books and spreadsheets. In addition, the application continually updates figures which can be used to measure library attendance and create annual reports and other media. Visit www.verfirm.com for more information.
